

Sky high comedy in West Linton

WEST Linton Dramatic Club's next production is the fast and frenetic farce "Boeing Boeing," which catalogues one day's amorous adventures in the life of playboy Bernard, who has three fiancées and, he thinks, the perfect life as all three are air hostesses on different routes, so his timetables and schedules ensure existence — never getting bored or having to settle down with just one woman!

Things start to go wrong when the weather and the airlines conspire to upset his well-ordered world and bring all three girls together in his flat at one time. The efforts of Bernard, his friend and his housekeeper to keep them all apart produce an hilarious evening.

The first night of the production is in aid of Save the Children 75th Birthday Appeal. The evening will include a cheese and wine reception. Tickets, priced £4.50, are available from West Linton Pharmacy, Main Street, West Linton.

The show will be staged in the Graham Institute, West Linton, on May 12, 13 and 14, commencing at 7.30 p.m.

Three West Linton Dramatic Club women are hotting up for their steamy production "Boeing Boeing" to be staged next week. Billed as a "fast and frenetic" farce, the play catalogues a day of amorous adventures in the life of Playboy Bernard who has three fiancées — all air hostesses on different routes. Pictured above, left to right, are: Janet (Lindsay Harrow), Jacqui (Linda Gray) and Judith (Susan Harkins).